LIGONIER NOW AT BEVERLY WITH 17 OF SANTURCE

The oil tank steamer Ligonier, which rammed the Santurce off the Capt last night, smashing a twelve foot hole in her side and almost sinking her, reached Beverly shortly afternoon to-day and anchored outside the harbor to wait for high tide this evening.

The Santurce is beached at Provincetown. Seventeen of the crew of the Santurce are on the Ligonier, which was bound here with three barges in tow when the accident happened. That no lives were lost when the two boats crashed in the darkness of fog was regarded as remarkable.

When the two boats came together it is declared that Captain Fulkner's vessel struck the Santurce on the bow. The captain was in a boat to see anything favorable of the wrecking crew, who he landed at Provincetown, ready to drop from the night's exertions. The captain and the six men who stood by him took their lives in their hands while they worked to get the Santurce away. At any moment she might have gone down. The Santurce will be brought back to Boston.

Captain Fulkner after reaching Provincetown today said:

"We have beached the Santurce, after a hard battle. The stern of my vessel is damaged about six feet. But the bow is about four feet above water. I was a long time to get the Santurce away from the water putting into her at the rate it did. When the Ligonier crashed into us in the fog, I asked her to stand by and then the crew began to board her. I remained on my injured craft with the chief mate, the chief engineer, the purser, another man and two others. I made seven men swim to the ship."

"It was our intention to take to the

REPUBLICANS APPEAL POPE TAX SPEECH BEFORE SENATE WITH COLEMAN

The Republicans of the House of Representatives today voted to refer to the Senate for ratification the appeal of Pope Pius X. The House vote was 219 to 191.

The appeal of Pope Pius X, which was made in the name of the Holy See, was a direct attack on the income tax law passed by the United States Congress in 1909.

The appeal was signed by the Pope and was addressed to the President of the United States. It was a direct attack on the income tax law passed by the United States Congress in 1909.

Another development today was the plan of the postmaster to establish an independent milk depot in Boston to handle the milk in opposition to the contractors and to call for public subscription for stock to finance this plan.

The legislative end of the milk war today was an effort on the part of friends of the producers to pass through both branches the order of Senator Mendenhall of Massachusetts for an investigation of the milk situation by the Attorney General. Senate President Thayer adopted a clause, on the ground that the proposer of a class of persons was in ill repute with a day on which a number of the Senate had died, referring to Senator Theodore Spaulding.

The order of the Senate was adopted today at City Hall. At 10:30 a. m. President Stanley H. Abbott and Governor Alvin Davis of the Boston Cooperative Milk Producers' Association called on Mayor Fitzgerald. They asked the Mayor to direct the Boston Board of Health to make a strict investigation of all long haul and storage milk being shipped into Boston.

The Mayor said that the board had full jurisdiction in the matter and expected that the representatives of the producers, who were in charge of the strike, would be able to make the board of health of the city.

Producers Make Charges.
Messrs. Abbott and Davis went from the Mayor's office to that of the Board of Health. They were given a half-hour of formal hearing before the full board. They told the board that they had reason to believe that the milk was coming from the city, because it was being loaded from the milkmen's vats and from other dairies.

Board of Health Will Inspect Supply Sent to Contractors During Boycott—State Legislators Act on Situation.

The Boston Board of Health assured the milk producers today that sharp watch would be kept for any importation or distribution of impure milk, and that immediate action would be taken.

Officers of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' Association told the board that the contractors were bringing in milk from such a distance and also were storing milk in such quantities that there was danger to the consumers. The board asked the producers to call the attention of the board to the first specific instances it could discover.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

The Transimont property continued on loss of a million in the Copper Range Consolidated. Last year the property was operated at a cost of $2,841,000. With a reduced output the copper cost per ton rose more than it did in 1909. The amount of $19,244 paid in taxes to Copper Range Consolidated in Houghton county was equal to nearly one-half cent per share of the common stock. As a matter of fact, the Consolidated Company last year got away with the $4 per share dividend paid last year, adding $20,000 to its surplus account. It is not for a $10 dividend paid from the Copper Range, which is accounted for by the fact that the Consolidated company last year got away with the $4 per share dividend paid last year, adding $20,000 to its surplus account. BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, MAY 4, 1910.

Why the Resolution for Popular Election of U. S. Senators Should Be Adopted

Compared to the United States Senate, the House of Lords of England is a popular body. Under our system of choosing members of the upper branch of Congress, that body is farther removed from the people than is the upper chamber of the English Parliament.

Instead of obeying public opinion, the United States Senate has been conducting itself on the theory that its business is to defy the wishes of the people.

The force of public opinion in England was illustrated a few days ago when it compelled the House of Lords to pass the Lloyd-George financial budget.

Even though the membership in the House of Lords is hereditary, or by appointment of the crown, a strong Premier on several notable occasions has succeeded in making that aristocratic body mould its temper to the popular will.

United States Senators, elected by the various State Legislatures, are beyond the reach of the people. They may defy public opinion and they may block progressive legislation with impunity, so long as the people have no hand in their election.

Too often the choice of a United States Senator has been a public scandal. Happily, Massachusetts has been free from any disgrace of that sort, and, fortunately, her Senators invariably have been men of ability and of commanding personality.

But this is not a Senator Lodge or a Senator Crane question. The resolution that comes before the House to-morrow on the question of its adoption is whether Massachusetts shall join the list of progressive States that have demanded a constitutional convention for the purpose of amending the Federal Constitution so that it will provide for the election of United States Senators by the people instead of by the various Legislatures.

It is generally conceded that when the Constitution was originally drafted the question of the election of Senators was compromised, and the ultra-conservatives, those that believed the reins of government should be as far away from the people as possible, conceded two Senators to each State in order to win enough votes for their proposition to have the Senators elected by the Legislatures and not by direct vote of the people.

A vote against the Riley resolution in the House to-morrow is to take a stand against allowing the people the fullest right of citizenship.

A vote against that resolution is a vote for Toryism, which should have no place in the Massachusetts of to-day.

A vote against that resolution means the approval of the right of the special interests to dictate the United States Senators; approval of a system which attempts to dictate the election of members of the Legislature, in order that special representatives of the special interests may occupy the seats of the mighty at Washington; approval of a system which allows the special interests to bargain with candidates for the Legislature, promising to pay their campaign expenses in return for their vote on the senatorship.

Senator Crane and Senator Lodge, in the opinion of many, are more zealous in their efforts for legislation for the special interests than they are for the things that vitally affect the great majority of the American people.

We believe that men could be elected from this State who would work harder for the common weal than either Crane or Lodge.

The demand for this amendment is becoming insistent. Five times since 1893 the lower house of Congress has gone on record in favor of the election of Senators by the people and each time the Senators have opposed it.

The Riley resolution comes before the House to-morrow as means of getting around the opposition of the Senate, because it has been provided in the Constitution that Congress, on the application of two-thirds of the various State Legislatures, must call a constitutional convention.

And the amendment proposed by that convention becomes as valid as if passed by Congress, when ratified by three-fourths of the State Legislatures or by conventions in three-fourths of the States. The adoption of the Riley resolution, therefore, is but a step in the right direction.

Already twenty-eight States have demanded the constitutional convention. It requires but the demand of three more. Six other States have gone on record in favor of it but have been turned down because they "requested" instead of "demanded" of Congress the calling of the convention.

The only arguments advanced against this proposition are, that it may result in the election of men who are apt to be swayed by "popular clamor" and would cost the candidates a great deal of money. The first argument is so silly that it is worthy of no consideration at all. If there is any merit in the second argument, it is that it may more speedily bring about legislation limiting the expenditures of candidates for public office. In other words, the arguments against the resolution are really arguments in its favor.

Governors are elected by popular vote, so why not United States Senators? If it is necessary for candidates for Governor to stump the State and tell the people how they feel toward popular measures, why should it not be the proper thing for United States Senators?

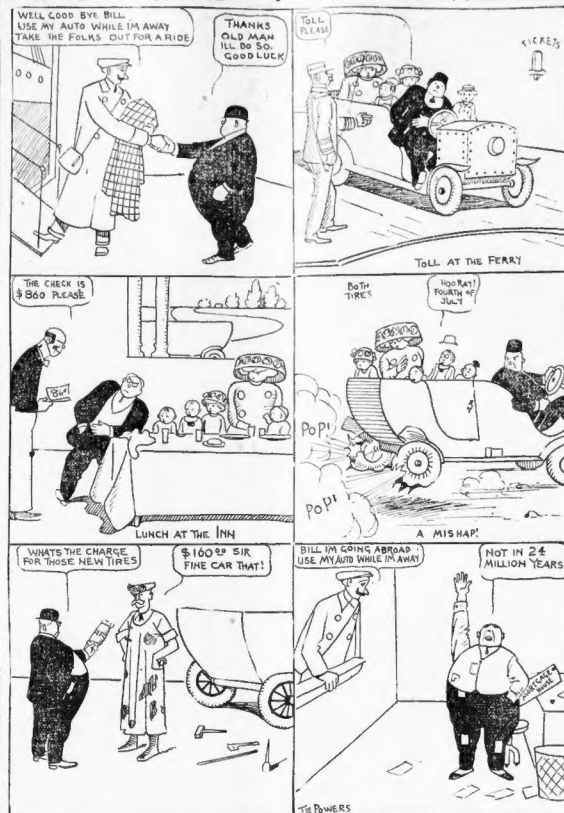

If the election of members of the United States Senate would have a tendency to lessen the conservatism of that body, what of it? It would be a good thing to inject a little of the spirit of progress into the United States Senate. Isn't it a sufficient safeguard to the spirit of conservatism that Senators are elected for six years?

Fifty Republicans in the Massachusetts Legislature, on the initial stage of this resolution, voted in favor of it. Since that vote was taken the lasses of the party bosses have been cracking; the agents of the special privilege classes have been pleading; the lobbyists have been insinuating and the strongest influences have been exerted to make some of the fifty see the "error of their ways."

It is a significant indication of the progressive spirit of the times when half a hundred Republican members of the Massachusetts Great and General Court, guided by the Republican House leader, James H. Knight, vote for what has been called so radical a proposition as the popular election of Senators.

It is such men as these that will save the Republican party in this State, if it is possible to save it, from becoming wrecked on the rocks of special legislation, illiberal policies and boss rule.

Twenty-five Years of Public Service

Abraham Shuman has an unusual career of unpaid public service, viewed from the standpoint of length and of quality. For twenty-five years he has labored faithfully and indefatigably to make the City Hospital a success. During that time the hospital has grown immensely in the three great directions of its work. It has increased greatly its facilities for dealing with the sick. It has developed a magnificent training school for doctors and nurses. It has helped materially in the advancement of medical science. All this has not been accomplished without the expenditure of energy and of money on the part of its trustees and particularly of the chairman of its board of administration which would arise in a private institution of the same character and scope, but he has also had to secure funds from the community for its development and has had to keep its machinery free from the corroding influence of the political atmosphere. All this he has done and done admirably.

Many men have given and give generously of their money, many men have given and give generously of their leisure, but Mr. Shuman has given out of a busy and successful career a very large measure of himself to the public weal. When the quality of his service and its duration for a quarter of a century is realized, it must be a source of congratulation to all citizens of Boston that men of such high sense of civic duty are developed in this community. The future of a city is safe so long as its citizens manifest such unselfish and untiring devotion to its service.

A Guide to Sports

By WEX JONES

BOATING.—The only kind of boating that counts nowadays is the kind that is done in Africa. The man who goes up to a monster grizzly and stretches it dead at his feet and blows of a winning stick has no honor in his own country. To achieve any notoriety at all it is necessary to spend many thousands of dollars—or have some rich friend spend it for you on the plea of "vacation"—in getting up an expedition to the home of the blemish hippopotamus, the blemish rhinoceros and the "elephant." There is no chance of becoming wealthy; there is no chance of being blown off one's course, and there is no danger of slipping any water except, of course, on the side, and then in strict moderation. In the form of yacht racing is rapidly becoming one of the most popular summer sports.

LACROSSE.—A delightful game, said, with every evidence of truth, to have been originated by the bloodthirsty Indian warriors of Canada. The pleasure of the sport is more. You may stop the ball, which travels with the speed of a Winchester, with your eye or nose. You may, and probably will, get the ball, neatly removed from your forehead. You may get your nose verified by coming in contact with the stick. In short, there are any number of pleasing things that may happen—which probably make lacrosse the good game that it is.
